ABOUT THE EVENT

As a leader, no matter how large or small your team, no matter where in your organisation you sit - you are a change leader.

You've had to manage the transition to a dispersed workforce, face the challenges of working and leading remotely, potentially lost people from your teams, and countless other unexpected and unprecedented disruptions. But whether you're an established leader, or brand new to management, leading through rapid change is its own unique and incredibly specialised skill. To be effective and thrive in this new post-COVID world, and to help ensure that you and your people are equipped for the challenges to come, you need to become an expert change leader.

Liquid Learning has proudly partnered with Dr Karen Whittingham, one of Australia's leading executive management development specialists, and Organisational Psychologist, to create this interactive change masterclass. Over two absolutely packed, interactive days of training, you will delve into the psychology of change, the biology of stress, how people respond physiologically to uncertainty, and the causes of change resistance.
