ABOUT THE EVENT

As the COVID-19 situation unfolds, schools are closing to protect their students and the broader public – but this doesn't mean a stop to learning for students or teachers. If the current crisis teaches us anything, it is that there is a need across all educational sectors to plan for sustainable, quality, flexible learning options.

In an economy where some sectors are going into hibernation in order to ride out the pandemic, the last thing that should slow is the Higher Education sector, as high-level training is one of the only routes back to a resilient and vibrant economy. With this massive and abrupt move to remote teaching and learning, higher education institutions need to address course grading, exam proctoring, content delivery and the wellbeing of both students and teaching staff to maintain educational continuity.

Through careful preparation, you can ensure a high-quality remotely delivered learning experience for students, with excellent support in place for students and teaching staff. This full-day interactive workshop, fittingly delivered online, will deep-dive into the shift to virtual learning and what this means for the future of Higher Education. You will assess the adaptability of your learning content and curriculum, develop strategies for maintaining student engagement remotely, discover mental health and wellbeing frameworks for staff and students and create an action plan to move from remote teaching to online learning.

WORKSHOP AGENDA

Bringing over 20 years of Higher Education experience, Executive Coach and Organisational Psychologist, Karen Whittingham will walk you through the rapid shift to virtual learning and what this means for your organisation. You will assess your current approach, develop student engagement strategies, build mental health and wellbeing frameworks to support both students and staff and create an action plan to ensure the sustainability of education post-COVID.

Continuity of learning and teaching through rapid change

- ▶ Conduct an audit to assess what is readily available and adaptable
- ▶ Ensure online content and learning is sustainable and accessible
- ▶ Develop strategies for maintaining and increasing student engagement

Flexible learning and teaching embedded in best practice

- ▶ Develop a whole organisation approach to teaching and learning
- ▶ Implement a Learning Management System to monitor engagement
- ▶ Upskill your staff and focus on collaboration to facilitate behavioural change

Supporting students and staff through uncertainty

- ▶ Identify at-risk students and determine access to alternative learning pathways
- ▶ Develop a mental health and wellbeing framework to support students and staff
- ▶ Provide open communication channels for staff and students, and update regularly

Ensuring academic outcomes and the sustainability of learning

- ▶ Explore the shift to virtual learning and what this means for the future
- ▶ Create an action plan to move from remote teaching to online learning
- ▶ Develop strategies for ensuring sustainability of education post-COVID
